

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is also tracking the spread of HPAI in wild and domestic birds.

In Texas, the virus has been confirmed in at least 200 wild birds, including teal, owls, gadwall and bald eagles.

HPAI was found in a commercial pheasant flock in Erath County in North Texas in April 2022. Officials believe the flock was infected by a wild bird.

There have also been cases of HPAI in household flocks in Hale, Lampasas, Denton, Rockwall and Dallas counties.

To protect domestic poultry, like chickens and turkeys, raisers are encouraged to increase biosecurity to prevent the spread of HPAI.

Tips include keeping visitors to a minimum, washing hands before and after coming into contact with poultry and wild birds, changing clothes before entering and leaving poultry houses, cleaning and disinfecting tools and other equipment and providing disposable boot covers for those coming into contact with poultry.

Symptoms of HPAI for domestic poultry include: coughing, sneezing, nasal discharge, and other signs of respiratory distress; lack of energy and appetite; decreased water consumption; decreased egg production and/or soft-shelled, misshapen eggs; incoordination; and diarrhea.

Avian influenza can also cause sudden death in birds even if they are not showing other symptoms.

The Texas Animal Health Commission (TAHC) urges poultry raisers who observe these symptoms to contact their veterinarian immediately.

Raisers without a veterinarian may contact TAHC at 1-800-550-8242.

TxDOT seeks public input

The Texas Department of Transportation is planning for the future, and public input is crucial as the agency looks to meet the transportation needs of tomorrow. TxDOT is hosting a statewide virtual public meeting with in-person open houses this spring for Connecting Texas 2050, the latest update to TxDOT's statewide long-range transportation plan.

With unprecedented population growth, increasing demands on our transportation system, and technological innovations reimagining how we move, TxDOT wants to hear from the traveling public as the agency looks toward 2050.

No matter where you work, live or how you get around, this plan impacts everyone in Texas. That's why TxDOT wants to hear from all Texans to help establish the vision, objectives, performance measures and strategic recommendations for the state's transportation system through 2050 for all modes.

During the statewide virtual public meeting and regional in-person open houses, TxDOT will explain the process of the statewide long-range transportation plan. Participants will also have the opportunity to share their vision and provide input on transportation goals and needs to help TxDOT plan for 2050.

The statewide virtual public meeting will be available online through May 31, 2023. TxDOT will also host in-person open houses in various locations. For a full schedule, visit TxDOT online. The same information will be available at the virtual public meeting and in-person open houses.

On This Day in Texas History March 31, 1883

On this day in 1883, many Texas cowboys went on strike against their bosses, absentee ranchers. The cowboys' grievances, however, were against developments that proved permanent. As closed-range ranching wiped out the previous open-range industry, some of the cowboys' traditional perks were denied them. No longer could they brand mavericks, keep small herds of their own, or receive part of their pay in calves. The strike mustered some 300 cowboys at its peak strength, but after 2 1/2 months the work stoppage was so weakened that the May roundup occurred without incident. The last press mention of the strike was in the Dodge City Times for May 10, 1883.
